Prevent future damage with a water shut-off device

Whether it’s a burst pipe or a leaking appliance, water damage to your home can seem as if it’s out of your control. With a water shut-off device, it no longer has to be. These devices offer better protection while helping you avoid the inconvenience of dealing with extensive repairs. Plus, you may qualify for a credit on your homeowners policy if you install a device.

How water shut-off devices work

Water shut-off devices monitor changes to the water and your plumbing system to detect any potential leaks. There are two main types of devices:

• Whole-house systems automatically shut off the plumbing system at your house’s main line if a leak is detected anywhere in the residence

• Point-of-use systems are attached to a specific water source or appliance and signal a warning when a leak is detected

1 in 50 insured U.S. homes have a claim related to water damage or frozen water each year.1

1 in 4 claims filed by our homeowners are due to non-weather water damage.
Installing a water shut-off device

Getting an approved device installed is simple, and you may qualify for a credit on your homeowners insurance premium once installation is complete.

1. Complete the meetflo.com/nationwide questionnaire to determine if the Smart Water Shutoff is compatible with your home.

2. Once you order the device that is compatible with your home, a Flo by Moen representative will contact you to coordinate a Smart Water Shutoff installation using a Moen FloPro verified plumber.

3. Once installation is confirmed by Flo by Moen, they will send you a certificate of installation. Follow up with your agent to see whether you qualify to receive a credit on your homeowners insurance premium.

To learn more about how to receive a credit on your policy, contact your agent.

For additional advice about water damage prevention devices, contact our approved vendor, Flo by Moen at: 1-844-MEETFLO or email support@meetflo.com. Device discounts are available due to your partnership with Nationwide Private Client.

nationwide.com/privateclient